"Perrin, Peter, Kartik and Saba each have built impressive practices, earned client trust and contributed to significant client and firm accomplishments – whether on the deals front, or in the courtroom. Fourmy represents clients in civil litigation in state and federal matters throughout Texas and the United States. He has handled issues across multiple areas, including oil and gas, premises liability, personal injury, contracts, vehicle products liability, property disputes and debtor/creditor and consumer rights. Among his litigation credits are defending vehicle manufacturers, equipment manufacturers and parts suppliers in individual cases and working as part of a multi-firm team defending multi-district litigation as a result of massive product recalls.

In recent years, he has focused his practice on construction and pipeline disputes, business litigation, creditor's rights, lien law and complex litigation matters. Fourmy has authored articles on changes in the law and testified before the Texas legislature on changes to the lien law. His most recent trial success was obtaining a verdict for a Colorado equipment supplier plaintiff against a $20 million West Texas oil field contractor, following a five day jury trial in the defendant's home venue of Midland, Texas.

A graduate of Wake Forest School of Law (J.D., cum laude, 2013) where he was Order of the Coif and Order of the Barristers and North Carolina State University (B.A., 2002), Fourmy was named a 2020 and 2021 "Texas Rising Star" and has been named to The Best Lawyers in America's "Ones to Watch" list for the past two years (2021 and 2022).
